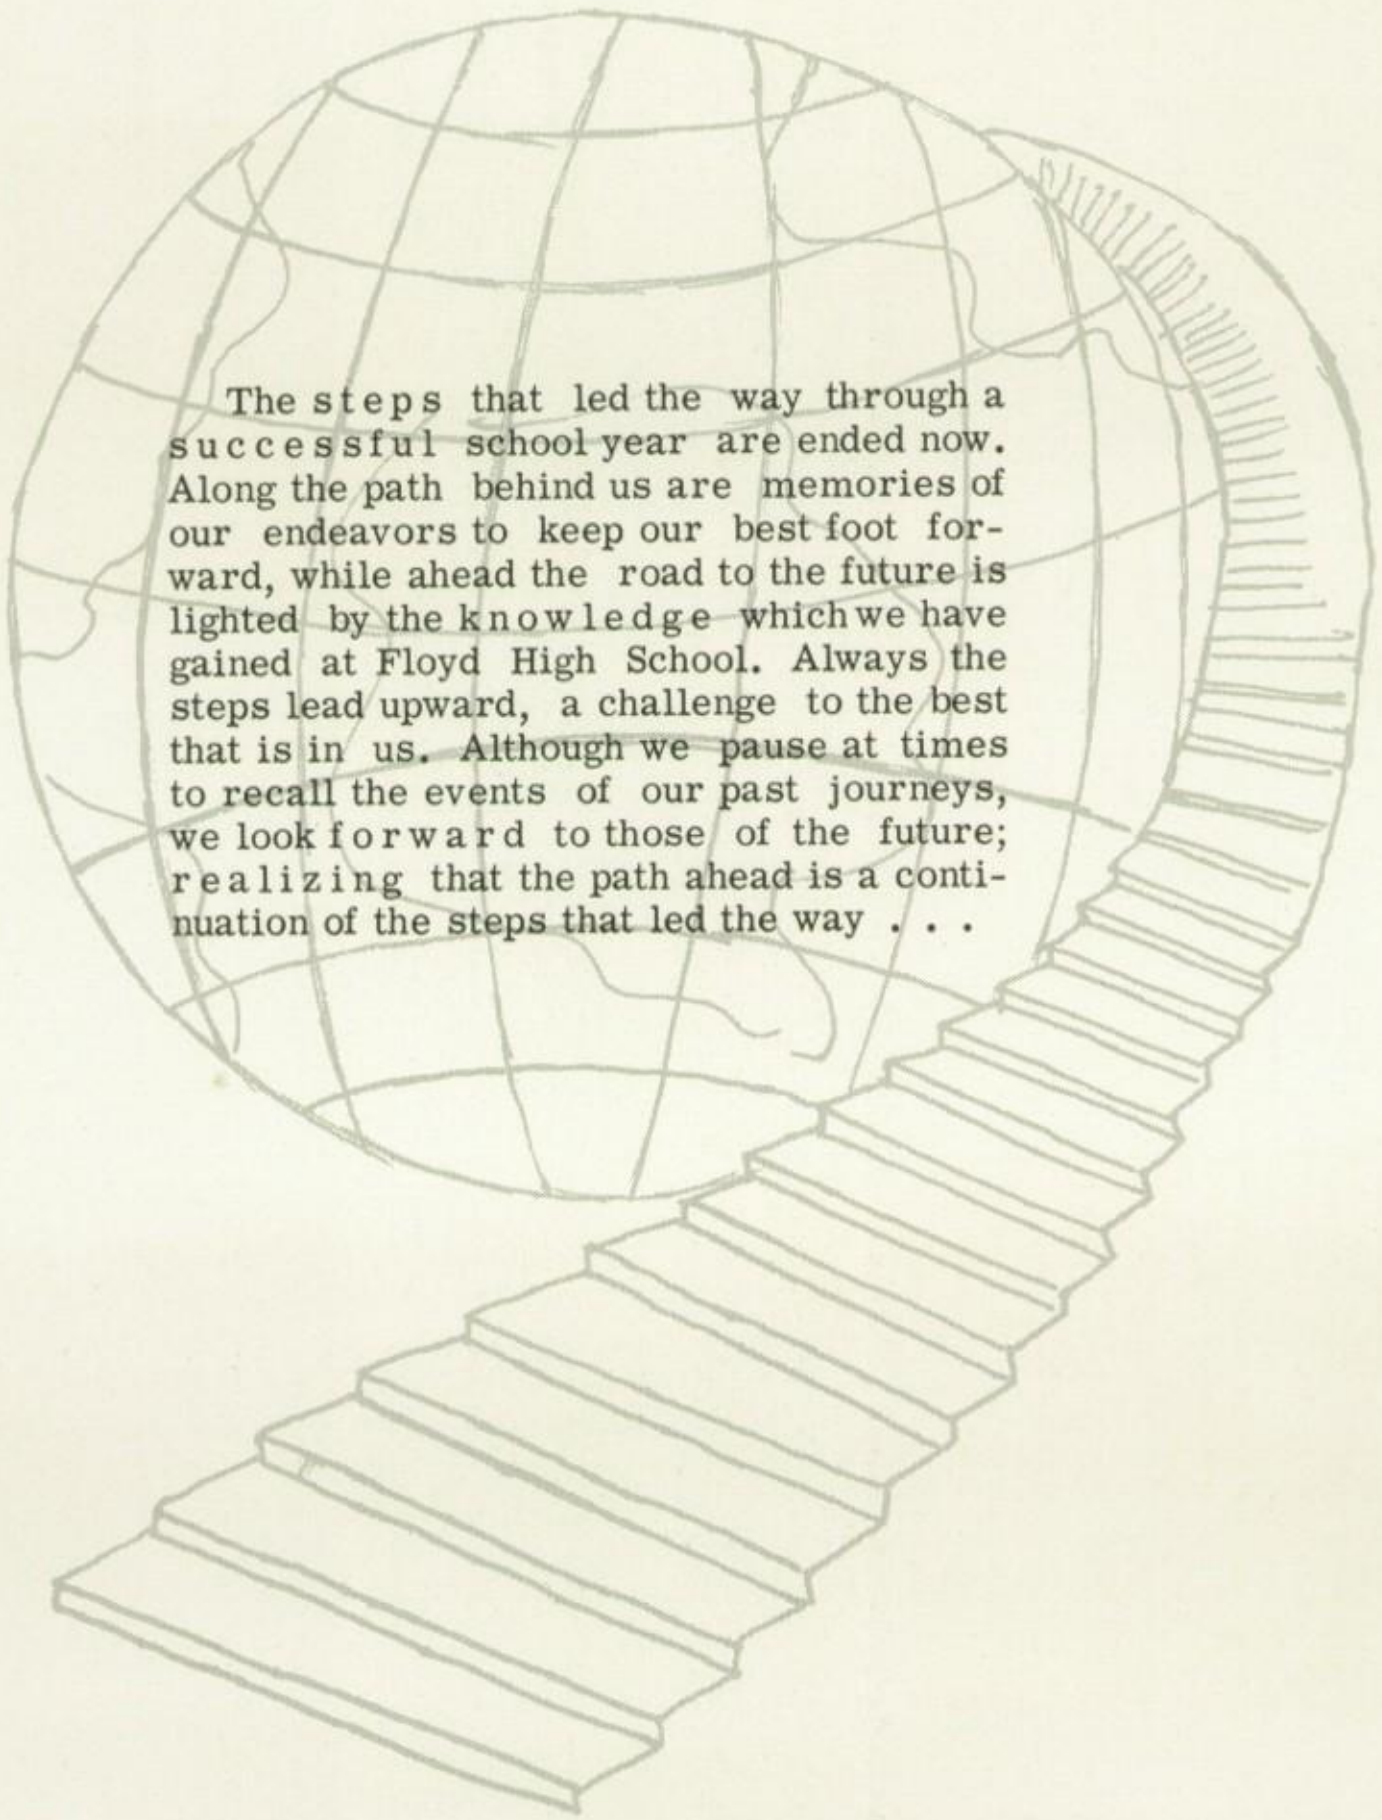
FOREWORD



The steps that led the way through a successful school year are ended now. Along the path behind us are memories of our endeavors to keep our best foot forward, while ahead the road to the future is lighted by the knowledge which we have gained at Floyd High School. Always the steps lead upward, a challenge to the best that is in us. Although we pause at times to recall the events of our past journeys, we look forward to those of the future; realizing that the path ahead is a continuation of the steps that led the way . . .

The Steps that led the way

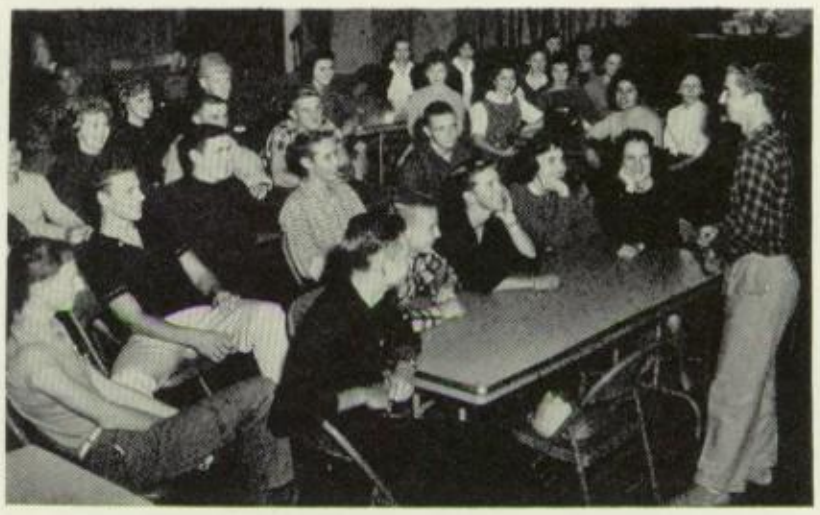
To Leadership

Phyllis Clower, SCA President, leads a student assembly.

This year has been rich in opportunity to gain the skills of leadership. Through the planning of the Student Co-operative Association Council, clubs and classes have been organized and trained in the work of giving life and meaning to the principles of self-government and self-discipline.



President, Gene Lee, holds a senior class meeting.

rs. Roberta Hewett tells Officer Training School how to a good officer.

Through our annual Officer's Training School sponsored by the SCA Council with the help of the faculty, officers for our various organizations have been trained in the duties which they perform as club and class leaders. Our assemblies have led our entire student body into an appreciation of the privileges and duties of school citizenship.

.... Sportsmanship

Basketball games have a high attendance record. Great support is put behind the teams.

An enthusiastic love of our school and a fervent desire to see her win in any competition was sometimes hard to combine with courtesy and consideration for our opponents. Our experiences at Floyd High School, both in our Athletic and Forensic competition, have shown us the value of sportsmanship and given us the opportunity to develop this quality in ourselves.

Kathy Hallman, Kathleen Agnew, Nancy Robertson, and Eric Quesinberry compete in forensics.

and Recreation

The Senior Class boards bus for the University of Virginia.

Gym classes get a good workout but it's fun!

There's always time for fun, no matter how serious the task. In many ways, our work was lightened by a little play. In gym classes there was always a new game or dance to learn, in clubs there were projects to work on, there were class plays to present, and certainly far from least, there were the casual meetings and "gabbing sessions" at lunch and in the halls.

Students put up this Latin II class bulletin board.

Through Education

Miss Dobyns gives guidance to Brenda Moles.

The biggest step of all . . . securing the knowledge and acquiring the skills for the world of work. Learning about careers, about ourselves and our interests and abilities has been a big task for us in high school.

Students in Applied English learn to be good speakers.

Our teachers have used many techniques and a variety of materials in presenting the subject matter of our courses. We have had the opportunity in many classes to put into practice the theories which we have learned from books. All this adds up to the most important step of all. Those which led the way . . .

The Class of 1961 gratefully dedicates this book to one who has taught them, counseled them, challenged them, and inspired them.

Both the school and the community have been enriched by her untiring service. As county and school librarian she has contributed to the pleasure and knowledge of countless readers. Her wise counsel has opened their eyes to new horizons of learning and adventure.

Her work in the church and in civic organizations has been a selfless record of concern for others.

Because of her sense of humor, her uncomplaining response to endless requests for information, her friendly warmth of personality, her thoughtful words of encouragement, and her continuous example of Christian character, the lives of this class will--in their best moments--reflect the influence of Mrs. Sally M. Dalton.

ADMINISTRATION

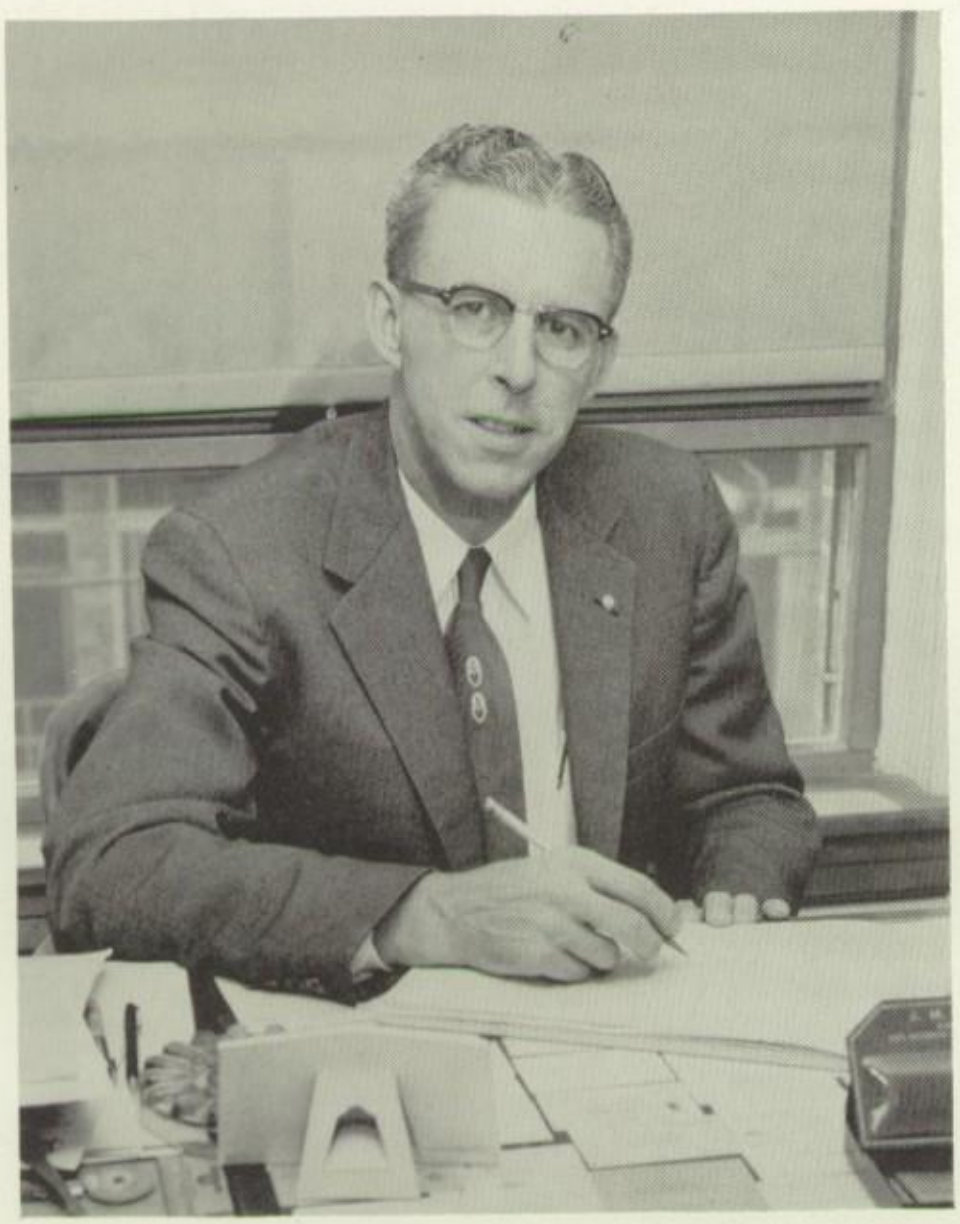
COUNTY SCHOOL OFFICIALS

Mr. J. H. COMBS,
Superintendent of Floyd County Schools



High in the esteem of the entire community is Mr. J. H. Combs, whom we are priviliged to have as Superintendent of Floyd County Schools. A man of innumerable capabilities; his sincerity, generosity, friendliness, and deepseated interest in the individual have won for him the love and admiration of each and every student and faculty member. Mr. Combs has interpreted the schools to the public through numerous articles and speeches and is meeting the needs of an expanding school system through the plans for a consolidated high school.

SCHOOL PERSONNEL

W. T. HARRY, Principal

Mr. W. T. Harry, Principal of Floyd High, had the task of working out schedules for 722 students and twenty faculty members. Making daily announcements, holding conference with teachers, students, and parents, and being everybody's friend were all a part of his job.

MRS. LORICE O'CONNOR, Secretary

Floyd High now has more mathematics classes offered to students than ever before. Plane and solid geometry, plus trigonometry are being taught to students who are interested in attending college. These math classes are required by most colleges for admittance.

Eric Quesinberry explains a problem during solid geometry class.

Math and Science ...

Algebra I and II are important, not only to those who plan to take higher math, but for many other purposes in daily life.

Students work Algebra II problems.

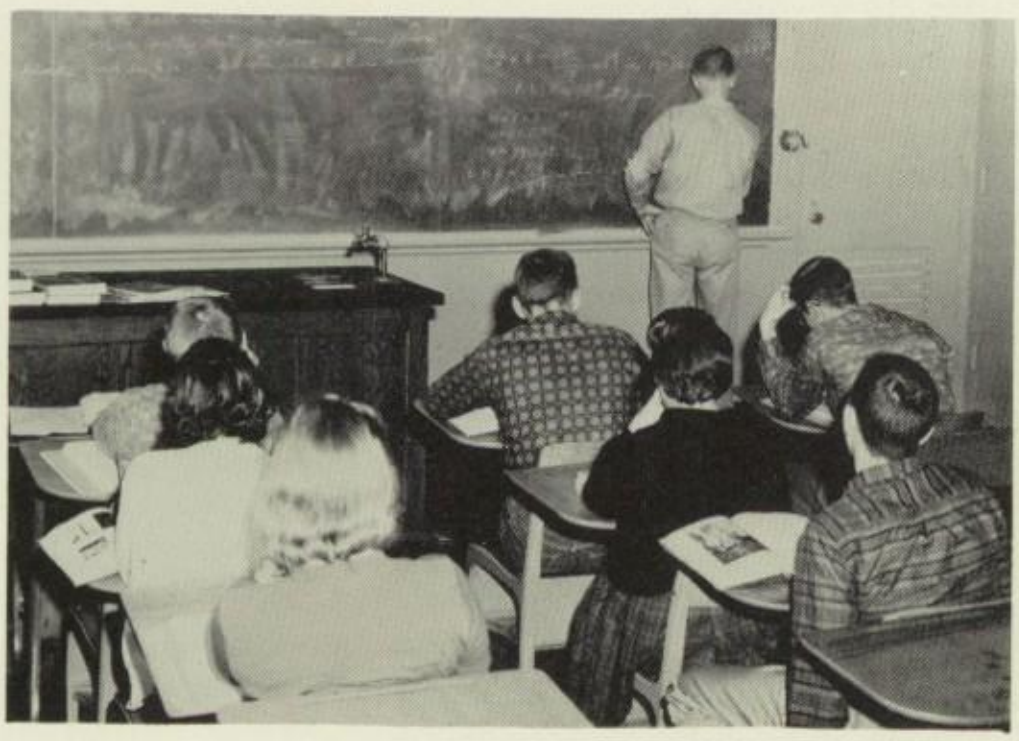
General Math students learn basic mathematics.

General math is a very useful course to anyone taking it, but it is especially useful to those taking vocational courses. In this class, students learn many basic mathematics facts that help them in everyday life.

Mrs. Rutrough teaches students about the solar system.

Mr. Thomas points out one-celled animals on the chart for first period biology class.

Are Two of Our Main Courses



Kenneth Reed works a difficult physics problem at the board.

The Science Department gives the student who likes science an opportunity to expand his knowledge with physics and chemistry.

Floyd High now offers chemistry one year and physics the next year. This school year, 1960-61, physics is being taught by Mr. Thomas.

Biology students learn more about the world of nature, and general science classes learn a little about all the fields of science.

Miss Dobyns's Latin II class reads speeches written in Latin.

A foreign language is sometimes required for entrance into a college. Since Latin is the only foreign language taught at Floyd High, many college-bound students take the course.

English and Latin

Students use the library for reference work in all classes.

The library is the most used room in the entire school building. Students travel in and out of the library continually.

Books for all purposes can be found in the library, and students make frequent use of these books.

The library is an unlimited source of knowledge, and the sooner a student learns to make use of this, the better off he will be.

During the Applied English class, students put the English they learn to practical use. They publish THE ANCHOR, our school newspaper, six times yearly. In addition to this, they study oral interpretation and all types of speechmaking.

The Applied English class studies speechmaking.

Prepare us For College

Mrs. Hallman explains the philosophies of great writers to the college bound section of the junior English class.

Business Has Many Advantages

Miss Slusher dictates to Shorthand II class.

A knowledge of shorthand is essential to any girl planning to become a stenographer or a secretary. Floyd High has a very good stenographic program with two years of shorthand offered to anyone interested in the subject.

Typing is a useful subject for everyone to know, but it is especially necessary to those taking the business course. Two years of typing are offered at Floyd High.

Students type daily lesson.

Bookkeeping class at work.

Bookkeeping, too, is useful to everyone. No matter what business one goes into during life, some sort of bookkeeping system is absolutely necessary. The newest and most efficient methods are taught by Miss Slusher.

Boys in agriculture class study better methods of dairy judging.

Boys in vocational agriculture classes learn newer and more modern methods of caring for and judging livestock, forests, and land. They learn and put to practice all better farming procedures.

Home Economics - Agriculture

Make Better Homes and Farms

Home Economics students learn better and more efficient ways to do the many things necessary to run a modern home.

F. H. S. girls may now take four years of home economics. This is the first year it has been possible to study the fourth year of home economics.

Mrs. Cockram watches Iris Basham sew a garment.

Girls in home economics class prepare to cook a meal.

Cooking and sewing are two of the many varied subjects girls learn about in home economics. Some other subjects they study are home nursing, family relations, food buying, and home freezing.

The girls also learn how to use different kinds of automatic washers and dryers, for the department receives new ones each year.

All seniors are required to pass government before they can graduate. The reason for this is that a good, general knowledge of the way our national and state governments operate is essential for a student to become a good citizen.

Government pupils also study Senior Scholastics, which keep them up to date on main events that occur in our world today.

Mr. Marshall discusses Senior Scholastics with his government class.

We Become Better Citizens

Through social studies

United States History is also necessary for the making of better citizens. Everybody should know his country's history; and, too, a good knowledge of history always comes in handy for all. Juniors are required to take this subject.

Juniors study the history of the United States.

Economic geography students learn not only about the locations of all different countries, but also about their economic situations, and many various details about the countries. This knowledge is very helpful.

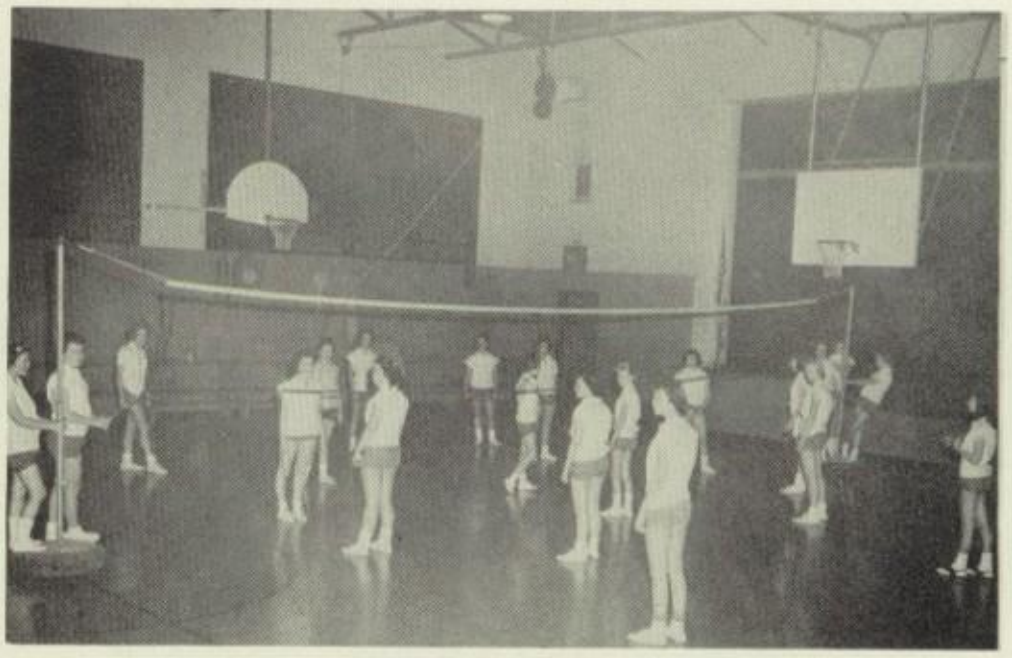
Boys in fifth period physical education class play ball.

Students in physical education classes learn not only the rules of a game and how to play it, but also good sportsmanship.

Boys begin early in the fall to study the rules of basketball and to play the game.

Girls, too, learn many different games in physical education classes. Among those games learned are badminton, table tennis, and basketball.

Health classes are also important, for they produce a better understanding of first aid and body care.



Eighth grade girls practice volleyball.

Physical and Drivers Education Prove to be Helpful

Mr. Sloane teaches health classes Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Mr. Enoch shows students the driver training car.

The Floyd High Band Adds To

This year was highlighted for the band when they received their new uniforms. Here is the last of the group being measured.

The band started the year with enthusiasm under the direction of Mr. Jack Kaufman. Members from the beginning band were promoted to the high school band.

Having advanced in number, the band members started out with projects to raise money for new band uniforms. New school colors were voted on by all the elementary and high schools in the county. This was done to prepare the band for the consolidated high school now being planned. The colors chosen were black and gold.

The band sold candy and conducted a tag day in order to help pay for the uniforms.

A school-wide magazine campaign was sponsored by the classes of the school for the band. All the proceeds were contributed for instruments.

The School Spirit in Various Ways

The bands All State winners are Left to right: Carole Thomas, Phyllis Clower, and Jean Thomas. All three of these girls have attended All State band in previous years.

The band played at home basketball games, gave concerts, marched through town, headed the Christmas parade, and performed at the Dogwood Festival.

This year the band was proud to have three of its members attend All-State Workshop Band. These three were Phyllis Clower, saxaphone; Jean Thomas, flute; and Carole Thomas, clarinet.

Classes

Mrs. Dalton and Mrs. Altizer

This year, for the first time, Floyd High seniors have had two class sponsors. Since the 1961 graduating class was so large, two homerooms were necessary, therefore two sponsors were necessary. Mrs. Virginia Altizer and Mrs. Sally Dalton were the senior sponsors this year.

SNOW STARS

Stars are falling all around;
Millions of them dot the ground.
Soon the landscape will be white
With their shiny, frosty light.

If, perhaps, it snows all night,
I then shall see by morning light
White-roofed houses, white-topped cars,
And I shall stand knee-deep in stars.

Rebecca Weeks won first place in the state for poetry in the creative writing contest.

The Senior Class Has Many

Jean Thomas is one of Floyd High's most versatile students. Jean has done outstanding work in many fields. She has attended All-State Band two years, was very active in F. H. A. and 4-H work, won the Junior English Award, and won first place in the State Science Fair.

In 1960 the students attending Boys' State in Blacksburg, Va., were Eric Quesinberry, representing Floyd High School, and David Gardner, representing the Ruritan Club. The two girls attending Girls' State in Radford were Phyllis Clower, representing the Women's Auxiliary, and Loreeta Nixon, representing Floyd High School. These students were chosen as delegates because of their outstanding achievements in good citizenship and government.

The '61 valedictorian and salutatorian were Phyllis Clower (left) and Jean Thomas (right). Phyllis had a 96.15 average, and Jean had an average of 95.17.

Junior officers were chosen at the beginning of the year. They are: Walter Moore, Jr., president; Carole Thomas, vice-president; Bernard Huff, secretary; Kenneth Blackwell, treasurer; Glada Bower, reporter.

One of the events which highlighted this year for the juniors was the ordering of their rings. In January the rings arrived and the corridors were filled with excitement for weeks.

The junior class play brought their extra curricula activities for the year to a close and the juniors felt that they had had an outstanding year.

The annual staff takes time out from a planning meeting to turn to the camera. As soon as the shutter clicks, the smiling faces turn grim to face the tasks ahead.

The ADMIRAL Staff works each year to

The main objective of the annual staff is to put the complete school year on record. This staff starts to work in the summer by selling advertisements.

During the year many hours are spent in choosing a theme, working on layouts, taking pictures, writing copy and going over the final inspections. The staff works hard to edit the best yearbook possible and make it one the students will be proud of.

Mrs. Altizer and Miss Slusher, yearbook sponsors, are always available for guidance, suggestions, and solving problems of editing.

The ADMIRAL STAFF is composed of seniors and a junior who are chosen by the out-going annual staff and sponsors.

This year's staff was proud to be able to enlarge their book to include an academic section.

Loretta Nixon, Nancy Robertson, Eric Quesinberry, and Judy Horton work on material which became our yearbook.

Ray Hatcher and Lou Burton work with Jean Graham and Mary Tolbert to complete our opening section.

The ADMIRAL editor, Sue Poff, and sponsor, Mrs. Virginia Altizer, proofread copy.

Thornton Turman, Margaret Hylton, Gayle Agee, Miss Slusher, and Dayle Agee work on financial problems of our annual.

The Student Cooperative Association

SCA homeroom representative, Susan Moore, goes over the latest SCA meeting in her homeroom. All homeroom representatives follow this system by reporting the latest SCA works to their homerooms.

The SCA is the Student Cooperative Association of the school. It is the governmental body that keeps the school in tip-top shape by ironing out the worries and problems of the school activities.

The SCA averages a meeting at least once a month. Among its activities are arranging the school bulletin boards, giving club assignments to the stands at basketball games, approving club activities, planning assemblies, and holding an election for incoming officers.

It is through the SCA that students are encouraged to show good citizenship and to conduct themselves in an orderly manner in the cafeteria as well as during the change of classes.

This year, being election year, the SCA sponsored a mock election. The polls were set up in the main hall and each student desiring to vote had to pay a five cent poll tax. The proceeds went to the SCA treasury.

Another yearly project of the SCA is to set up a big Christmas tree at the front entrance of the school.

To become an SCA officer a person must submit an application form to the SCA screening committee. This committee selects the people who will run. The President is always a Senior, Vice President, a junior; Secretary, a Sophomore; Treasurer, a Freshman; and the Reporter may come from any class.

The Future Homemakers of America is a club for high school girls who are either taking home economics, or who have joined the club to gain more knowledge in modern homemaking.

Junior, Chapter, and State Degrees are given each year for outstanding homemaking achievement. High goals are aimed for and worked on in order to receive these homemaking awards.

The club has many active projects during the year. This year the most important project of the club was to adopt a needy family and make clothes for each member.

Other club activities were to present a fashion show, with the FHA girls serving as models, to give a school assembly, to make a study of future careers, and to bring the club year to a close with the annual Parent-Daughter Banquet.

The Floyd Future Farmers of America Chapter had over sixty members during the 1960-61 school period.

Many boys who are interested in agriculture and farming join together to make up this club. Members entered many different competitions and won various honors in livestock, dairy, crops and forestry judging contests.

FTA members visit Radford College

Under the able leadership of their sponsor, Miss Catherine Dobyns, and their club mother, Mrs. Woodrow Turman, the Future Teachers of Floyd High have had a busy and most satisfying year. The club made a complete study of scholarships available to those entering the teaching profession and visited Radford College. These projects were very helpful to all club members in planning for the future.

Rebecca Weeks, shown in the above picture, as well as all other members of the FTA, gained valuable experience by aiding primary teachers.

The Future Teachers made use of all the files in the guidance room as to the opportunities of teaching in Virginia today. They are using this information in a comparative study of teaching facilities in different schools and communities.

Mildred Smith, an outstanding club member, won the FTA sponsored contest by writing the best theme on "Why I Want to be a Teacher." The FTA has decided to make this contest an annual event at FHS.

The Varsity club is made up of all of those students who have lettered in any kind of sports or cheerleading These sports-minded club members help to publicize the on coming games by placing posters on school bulletin boards and in town stores.

Since the biggest part of this group participates in some kind of sports their main project is to promote school spirit and to gain more and more interest in the ball games.

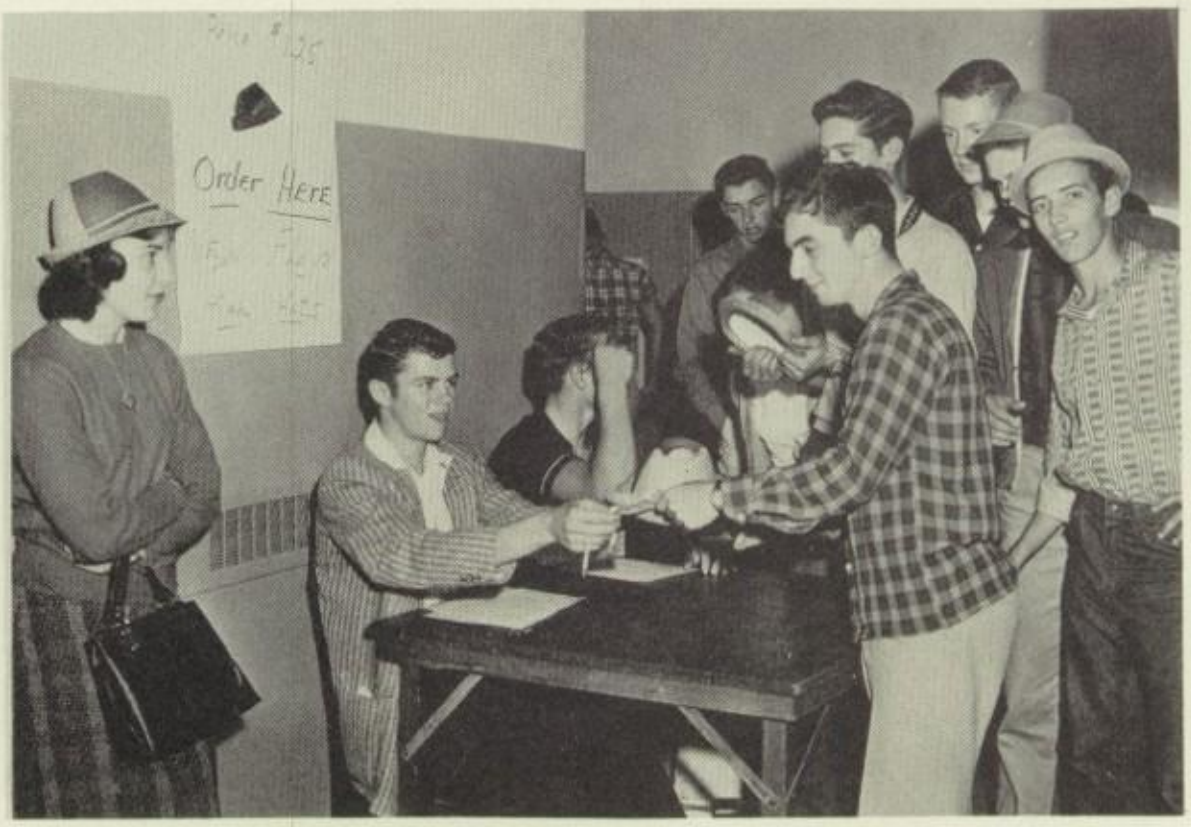
The money-making project of the club this year was to sell Hi-Hats. This went over big and the hat sales stayed on full swing for three full weeks.

Mr. Eugene Sloane and Mr. Ellis Enoch, the high school coaches, are the club's sponsors. The club has grown in size and importance through the past year. It stands for the best athletes in school. A high honor is placed on those who belong.



The largest project the club had this year was selling Hi-Hats. The great demand for the hats is shown here.

The Floyd High Science Club has really been on the ball this year. The club's projects included a group science fair project, a study of fluorination in their community, and had a candidate for state office.

Dr. George Surber talked to the club about the opportunities in pharmacy. Dr. Robert Patten and a park ranger also addressed this industrious group.

Jean Thomas, the club secretary, served on Constitution Committee of the Virginia Junior Academy of Science.

of Science to the Modern World of Today

For several years our Science Club has done much to encourage participation in the annual Floyd County Science Fairs. The club is greatly pleased with the following winners who captured more than half of the fifteen possible awards at this year's fair: Jean Thomas, Carole Thomas, Hazel Hatcher, Brenda Semones, Cheryl Ninman, Judy Slusher, Janet Slusher, Hazel Ratliff, and Phyllis Alderman.

Two of these winners, Jean and Carole Thomas, represented the county at the Western Virginia Science Fair held April 8 at Roanoke College.

The primary library is kept in shape by the help of Glada Bower, Shirley Huff, and Marie Moran.

Much credit should be given to the Library Club for keeping the library in tip-top order while its sponsor, Mrs. Sally Dalton, was ill for the entire first semester.

These members kept the library records, books, materials, and files in shape for easy reference. They helped other students in checking out books and finding material. The primary library was also kept up by these students.

The bulletin board in the library was put up each time by club members. They sent a basket of food to a needy family at Christmas and sponsored a bake sale.

This club is an organization of students who are interested in library work, books, and a well-rounded education through reading. They worked hard this year to have a neat library in the absence of their sponsor.

Some of the bus drivers talk over their daily problems and road conditions. They are L-R: Harmon Williams, Sherman Thompson, Henry Whitlow, Larry Graham, James Wilson, and James Thomas.

Safety is not taken for granted by these people--it is a way of life for them. Floyd High School owes much to their careful plans and attitudes in their daily work as well as in times of emergency.

Students board the bus, confident that bus drivers and bus patrolmen will give them the safest transportation to and from school.

The school patrol and the bus patrol, under the direction of Mr. H. P. Jennings, perform an important role in the promotion of safety for our school.

The school patrol supervises the parking of cars during all school functions. These boys keep traffic moving in an orderly manner, thereby contributing much to the convenience and safety of the public.

The bus patrol is concerned with the safety of the students as they cross the highways and enter or leave the buses.

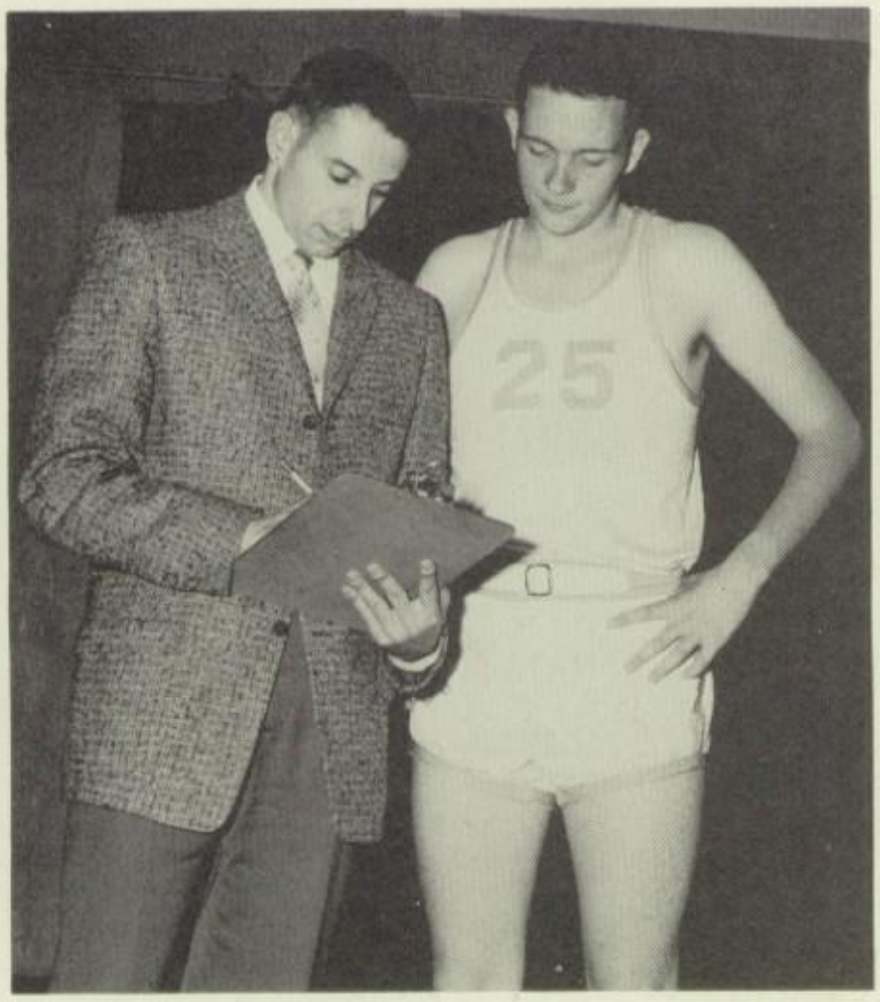
ATHLETICS

The Eagles, led by Coach Sloane,



Coach Eugene Sloane and Captain Eric Quesinberry go over plays.

The Eagles made an outstanding record this year. The long hours of practice and hard work paid off and they ended the season in first place in District 6 with a 15-1 record.

The boys outscored their regular opponents 969-617. They had four starters averaging in double figures. These were led by Mack Gallimore at 16.2 and Leonard Shelor with a 15.7, mark, who were second and fourth in the point race in District 6.

The Eaglets had a good year in 1960-61. At the end of the year they had a 6-4 record. The girls put a lot of effort into their basketball and came out with one of the best teams that Floyd High has ever produced. It was an all out team effort with balanced scoring and able defense work by the guards.

Mr. Ellis Enoch has coached the girls for three years and he has done an excellent job. The captain and co-captains were elected at the beginning of the season and showed real leadership.

The Eaglets always show the spectators a good game when they play basketball. Here the girls are playing a scrimmage game with a nearby school, Auburn.

The girls took great pride in their team this year. The practice sessions began in October. They spent many hours practicing and perfecting their play. This work paid off, as the record shows.

The Jr. Varsity posted a 3-2 record this season, growing consistently better as the season progressed. The team consisted almost completely of eighth graders with very little experience, but they came through in fine fashion. Their winning record is a tribute to the able direction of Mr. Ellis Enoch.

The girls played more games this year than they had in previous years. Excellent school spirit and fine sportsmanship were shown by the team at every game.

The cheerleaders each year strive to put their pep and energy to good use. This "good use" is always centered upon the Eagles and Eaglets.

This year for the first time the cheerleaders chose a mascot, Ann Moore. She was unanimously accepted by the squad and went along with the cheerleaders to every game.

The cheerleaders had many activities which kept them busy. They sponsored pep

The cheerleaders show their best ability at the ballgames by leading the group in yells. They spend at least three days a week practicing after school. Ballgames are fun for the cheerleaders because they have an opportunity to get the crowds into the real ballgame spirit.
